THE AMERICAN TERRA COTTA INDEX

EDITED BY STATLER GILFILLEN

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This project has been supported by the following:

A grant from the ASSOCIATED STUDENT CHAPTERS OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTS.

A grant from the NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS in Washington, D. C., a Federal Agency.

A grant-in-aid awarded by the MINNESOTA STATE ARTS COUNCIL, assisted by the Minnesota Bi-Centennial Commission, the Minnesota Resources Commission, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a Federal Agency.

Mr. George A. Berry on behalf of TC Industries.

Personal thanks should go to the following, without whose assistance this project would not have been completed;

Mrs. Susan Ibrahim, who took on the nearly impossible task of composing and preparing the final draft of this document.

Mr. Kendall Bird and Mr. Arthur Jenner of the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company, who have brought alive to me the production and art of terra cotta.

Dr. Paul Sprague, who has been a continual inspiration and guide.

June Lundgren, AIA; Louis Lundgren, FAIA; and Cherry Lundgren, who because of their love of architecture, first inspired me to pursue the research which has led to this index.

Brooks Cavin, AIA, who has graciously consented to write the forward for this index.

Fay DeAvignon and Pat Davis, past and present president of the Associated Student Chapters of the American Institute of Architects.

Mrs. Georgia DeCoster, of the Minnesota State Arts Council.

Mr. Frank Ake of Chicago.

FORWARD

From time immemorial, man has sought to enrich his buildings by various means in order to satisfy a deep-seated yearning for beauty. This enrichment has taken on many forms and employed many different materials over the centuries. Each material imposes certain limitations on its use, while offering special opportunities unique to its own physical characteristics. When the opportunities and the limitations of a specific material are thoroughly understood, that material can then be exploited to the fullest. But when creative sensitivity and technical skill are added to understanding, the chances are most favorable for that material to find expression in art which has meaning for people of different times and different cultures.

During the last decades of the nineteenth century and into the early decades of the twentieth century, architectural terra cotta in the United States was literally lifted from common clay into the realm of art, through the pioneering efforts of a few dedicated architects and the skill of an even smaller number of sculptors and craftsmen. This new form of enrichment spread very rapidly with the rapid growth of industry and commercial development during this period, but it declined even more rapidly with the great depresssion of the early thirties.

This listing of terra cotta installations in the upper mid-west is indicative of the significant role it played in the development of urban America.

Brooks Cavin, AIA
St. Paul, Minnesota

PREFACE

The American Terra Cotta Program grew from the First Louis Sullivan Award Jury held at the American Institutes of Architects headquarters, Washington, D. C., in July, 1972. This project is a part of that program, undertaken as a part of the American Bi-Centennial Program, as a result of consultation with Fay DeAvignon, President of the Associated Student Chapters of the American Institute of Architects and Cherry Lundgren, Regional Director for the associated Student Chapters.

Under Sullivan, Wright, Elmslie, and many others, terra cotta reached new heights in art and architectural history. But in 1966 the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company ended 85 years of production and no study of this ornamentation has ever been pursued.

In the fall of 1972, the records, drawings, and molds of the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company became part of the Northwest Architectural Archives at the University of Minnesota. The program, at that time, varied from the initial concept of keying directly upon Sullivan to a much broader program that would encompass both Sullivan and architectural ornamentation.

This American Terra Cotta Index is the first attempt to bring information on terra cotta into a useable format, preserving information about this once vital genre of architectural ornament before its neglect makes the ideas it comprehended unavailable to succeeding generations of architects and students of architecture.

Director, American Terra Cotta Program

INTRODUCTION

This index is an attempt to present a catalog of the American Terra Cotta collection contained in the Northwest Architectural Archives at the University of Minnesota. The collection consists of the known work of the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company, the Indianapolis Terra Cotta Company, the Midland Terra Cotta Company and the Winkle Terra Cotta Company.

Because each company was distinctly different, there will be some variation in the method of presentation. The following information explains what each section of the index denotes.

AMERICAN TERRA COTTA AND CERAMIC COMPANY

Coversheet and History - This section briefly explains the background of the company taken from "The Story of Terra Cotta" by Walter Geer; Tobias A. Wright, printer and publisher, 1920.

Master File - This file is the basic listing of the company's orders. The number to the left of each listing is the order number given to a particular job by the company. This number is only arbitrary, given to each job at the reception of the order to prevent confusion. The numbers are consecutive, corresponding with jobs. Accompanying the order number is the name of the building, owner or type of work, depending on information available.

Example: order 1199 Powers Bldg.
Monroe and Wabash
Chicago
Holabird and Roche

1199 is the order number. (American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company began to keep records with this number.) Powers Building is the name of the building. Monroe and Wabash is the street address. Chicago is the city the building was built. Holabird and Roche was the architectural firm. The architect(s) will be indented. (Where there is no architect indented no architect was listed.)

order 1202 St. Louis Hotel
Addn.
Duluth, MN
Gilbert

The only variation here is that this order was an addition to the St. Louis Hotel in Duluth, Minnesota, and the addition was designed by Gilbert.

Following the master listings are another set of numbers preceeded by a "B". These are Block Orders completed by the company, usually consisting of standard glazed block sizes and not highly ornamental work.

At the end of the master file is a series of four miscellaneous orders. Their specific meaning is not known.

In order to use this index effectively, it is necessary to become familiar with the abbreviations used.

Date File - This file is a listing of order numbers with corresponding dates. In the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company section, all dates before the order number 3800 were taken from photographs and drawings of the company's work. All dates after 3800 were taken every 50 entries and the first order of each year. This was done because all listings for the ATC had to be reconstructed by cross-referencing for orders before 3800.

Example: order 1199 1903 This means that order 1199 was done in 1903.

It should be noted that when a company received an order it was not always given an order number in the exact date sequence, thus, it is possible to have one order number preceed another in date while being a later number. The dates are good for giving a very close approximation to the time of construction, but for more details it is suggested that you contact the Northwest Architectural Archives.

Architect's File - This file usually gives three basic pieces of information: the full name of the architect or designer, where he practiced, and what buildings he worked on. From this, it is possible to determine approximately whan an architect was practicing by checking the date file with the list of buildings after the architect's name. By the separate listings, it is possible to determine when a given architect practiced in a given area and with whom. If there should be a listing of John Doe (beneath the architect) on order 1000, this means that John Doe had a major role in the job. If there are two listings for the same job, then the company records showed that two architectural firms worked on the job. It is not uncommon for a firm in one state to consult with a local firm when the job is in another state.

The master file lists only the last names of the individuals involved in design. If the architect file shows more than one architect with the same last name, it is necessary to scan the list of names until the order number is found.

Location File - This file is done as a convenience to find a listing for a building. Because of the high number of buildings in the Chicago area, the location index has been divided into two sections: buildings by city outside Chicago, and buildings by streets within the city. A guide which can be used in locating a building in large cities, other than Chicago, is to scan the date file and check only those structures which could fall within the date range.

Please note abbreviations used for states, cities and addresses. The following streets in Chicago have changed.

12th St. changed to Roosevelt Rd.
41st changed to Karlov Ave.
49th St. changed to Pershing Rd.
59th St. changed to Franklin
48th Ave. changed to Dorchester
Madison Ave. changed to Dorchester
York St. changed to Flournoy St.
5th Ave. changed to Wells St.

Drawing and Photo File - This index is a listing by order number of all drawings and photos now in storage at the Northwest Architectural Archives. There are four types of items listed.

D - Shop Drawing: This is the working drawings of the ornament. There are two basic types of drawings, key sheets and shop drawings. The key sheets are the overall scale drawings of the structure showing where the terra cotta was to be used. The shop drawings show the details of construction of each piece of terra cotta.

F - Full Scale Drawings: These were drawings used to construct the model of the work to be done. A draftsman would draw a full scale detail of the finished piece, then the sheet would be laid upon the clay and an impression made from the drawing.

B - Building Photo: This photo was taken for the company in order that a record of the finished work could be maintained.

P - Detail Photo: This is usually a photo taken of the finished model in the shop (before a mold was cast) and sent to the architect for his approval. Many of the photos that remain are either the original negatives or those sent back with approval or changes by the architect.

This file does not state how many of each of the above categories remain, only that there is at least one drawing or photo in the collection. Writing to the Archives is the only way to get further information.

INDIANAPOLIS TERRA COTTA COMPANY

The format is the same as that of the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company, differing only in the way that the sequence of order numbers read. Where there is no number listed in the sequence, there was no listing for a building which could be found from the drawings. If only 38 orders were taken in a given year, then the order might read (as it did in 1924) 2400 to 2438 with the following year (1925) beginning with 2500.

MIDLAND TERRA COTTA COMPANY

The format here varies in that the records included are from the company's original handwritten ledgers. Photo copies were made of the entire listing. The orders for each month were listed. The format is as follows.

First Column: Order Number - Where the order number is a four or five diget number the company often dropped the first two or three numbers. If one is looking for the order number it is recommended that one scan backward until the first numbers can be found.

Second Column: Date - This column gives the specific day of the month. The month is always at the top of the listings. If there is no month listed, always refer back to the preceeding page. The same is true for the year.

Third Column: Owner - This column lists the owner and often the type of work and the name of the building.

Fourth Column: Location - A general rule is that if only a street is given, the building was probably done in the Chicago area.

Fifth Column: Architect

Note: If there is a line drawn through an order than the order was at that time probably cancelled.

WINKLE TERRA COTTA COMPANY

The format is similar to the American Terra Cotta and Ceramic Company listing, except that there is only a master file. All listings were taken directly from the drawings as no records were available. Building, location, architect and date are all on the master file. For each listing there is at least one drawing at the Archives. If only a street is listed, general assumption is that the building was in St. Louis, Missouri.

The author hopes that should you find new important information or have any questions, you would contact him or the Northwest Architectural Archives.

NOTE: Company records listed some abbreviations that were not known, and were listed as the company showed them.

Minneapolis is the only city abbreviated. Chicago and Minneapolis are the only cities the state has been deleted.

No Listing - means that no record of the building exists.

A question mark (?) - means the entry was not legible or information on records was highly questionable.

Order 2338 - Detail of ornament panels for Exchange Bank Building, Madison, Minnesota by Purcell, Feick and Elmslie. Drawing dated October 1, 1913.
